

LARGEST ORDER IN COMPANY HISTORY FOR LAMMHULTS

Last Friday, Lammhults Möbel received its largest order in company history. The order, corresponding to approximately 15 MSEK, is for the complete interior of WTO's (World Trade Organization) new head office. The building, in Genève, Switzerland, has been designed by the German Architect Professor Jens Wittfoht.

PRESTIGE PROJECT

The delivery, to be carried out in October, includes working and meeting areas for 260 persons, and also social areas such as restaurants and cafés. Lammhults has been working on this project since September last year and received the order in competition with a number of actors from all over Europe. Towards the end, there were still nine tenderers.

"-The fact that Lammhults was chosen as a total supplier for one of the UN's buildings confirms our position as one of the top design brands in Europe. This is a project that provides valuable prestige for our future, long-term work in order to increase our presence on the international arena." says Lars Bülow, MD, Lammhults.

WTO'S NEW HEAD OFFICE

SCANDINAVIAN DESIGN

The order consists of a number of seating furniture and table from the Lammhults range, products designed by Lammhults' prominent Scandinavian designers. Among the chosen products are Cinema easy chair by Gunilla Allard, Addit modular sofa by Anya Sebton and Imprint chair by Johannes Foersom & Peter Hiort-Lorenzen. "-Besides being very strong design-wise, Lammhults' products are also very functional and provides the highest quality, factors that all have been determinants for the success in this project", explains Lars Bülow.

THIRD-PART PRODUCTS

A large part of the interior that Lammhults delivers to WTO is third-part products. This concerns working places, lighting, textiles and acoustic solutions. In this case, we collaborate with, apart from our sister company Abstracta, with other design-oriented companies like the Danish textile company Kvadrat. "Being the total supplier in projects, instead of only delivering some parts for a project, is a new and challenging way of working for Lammhults on the export markets", says Jean Verner, Project Manager. "This project gives us experience and strong references for the future, and we show our partners that we, at Lammhults, have both the products and the resources to take place in really large projects" Jean Verner concludes.
